St Vincent de Paul was born at Pouy, Gascony, France, in 1580, Born of a peasant family. Ordained in 1600 he remained at Toulouse or in its vicinity acting as tutor while continuing his own studies. Brought to Marseilles for an inheritance, he was returning by sea in 1605 when Turkish pirates captured him and took him to Tunis. He was sold as a slave, but escaped in 1607 with his master, a renegade whom he converted. On returning to France he went to Avignon to the papal vice-legate, whom he followed to Rome to continue his studies. He was sent back to France in 1609, He became the spiritual director of Mme de Gondi. With her assistance he began giving missions on her estates; Nearly everywhere after each of these missions, a conference of charity was founded for the relief of the poor, notably at Joigny, Châlons, Mâcon, Trévoux, where they lasted until the Revolution. After the poor of the country, Vincent's solicitude was directed towards the convicts in the galleys. Before being convoyed aboard the galleys or when illness compelled them to disembark, the condemned convicts were crowded with chains on their legs onto damp dungeons, their only food being black bread and water, while they were covered with vermin and ulcers. Their moral state was still more frightful than their physical misery. He won their hearts, converted many of them. Vincent de Paul established the Daughters of Charity. Vincent conceived the idea of enlisting good young women for the service of the poor. Vincent's zeal and charity went beyond the boundaries of France. As early as 1638 he commissioned his priests to preach to the shepherds of the Roman Campaigna; He sent others to Ireland, Scotland, the Hebrides, Poland, and Madagascar (1648-60). Of all the works carried on abroad none perhaps interested him so much as the poor slaves of Barbary, whose lot he had once shared. His zeal for souls knew no limit; all occasions were to him opportunities to exercise it. When he died in 1660 the poor of Paris lost their best friend and humanity a benefactor unsurpassed in modern times. On 13 August, 1729, Vincent was declared Blessed by Benedict XIII, and canonized by Clement XII on 16 June, 1737.

A very humble plea for donations

As you may have noticed there have been new and expensive PA systems installed in both Bourne and Deeping at accost of £7000+. This is £2000 over budget. Any donations however big or however small would be most gratefully received toward the cost of this most necessary equipment. Thank you and May God bless you
